

It is important for children to learn the difference between right and wrong at an early age. punishment is necessary to help them learn this distinction. To what extent do you agree or disagree with this opinion?

The childhood is ~~the~~ a significant period of time for children to be educated ~~ed~~ ing the ~~distinguish-~~ distinction between normal and abnormal behavior. I personally disagree with this part of statement which states punishment is necessary because its drawbacks more than its benefits.

One of the most vital parents' duties is to teach their children to know right from wrong at an early age in order to help them to contribute to ~~the~~ the society in the future. Although ~~making-~~ giving/administering punishment is not a right path to ~~avoid-prevent~~ children from ~~their misbehave-~~ misbehaving, there are effective ways to do so. ~~First-of-all,like~~ by creating a reward and punishment system as well as prohibition from their beloved activities. punishment whether corporal or otherwisementally can cause deep psychological traumas ~~on-to~~ on children which in consequence they spend their entire lives ~~to-overcome-overcoming~~ its outcomes. Therefore, by exerting sorts of effective discipline such as letting them help ~~to~~ the housework that this mild punishment will guide them to the right direction in their life.

The other way is that parents initially should be educated about their role modeling. that is, they can consult ~~of-with~~ with psychologists to learn the most suitable treatments to meet their children's challenge. As long as parents do not make a change in their own behavior, they could not expect ~~ed from~~ their offsprings not to misbehave ~~immorality~~.

To summarize, I believe that it is acceptable to use punishment as a tool for learning-teaching children the basic moralities. However, i recommend ~~ed to-make-using~~ appropriate punishments which ~~is-~~ causehelps to guide ~~the~~ the children to have the right behavior.
