

Going overseas for university study is an exciting prospect for many people. But while it may offer some advantages, it is probably better to stay home because of the difficulties a student inevitably encounters living and studying in a different culture.

To what extent do you agree or disagree with this statement?

Nowadays we could see that the tendency of studying abroad has been enhanced drastically. Also, this process involves some pros and cons that will be occurring/will occur for students and there are some antithesis-opposing opinions regarding this issue .

Some people are of the thought that First of all, life is an adventure and this is a great opportunity to expand our experiences and find out about new cultures throughout this way which would be leading to broadening your horizons. Secondly, it helps you to take you out of your comfort zone, in other words, it makes you feel the independency-independent and will increase students' threshold of coping with hardships of life. finally, it is worth mentioning that it will elevate your resume and pave the way for greater job opportunity-opportunities in the future.

On the other hand, some people subscribe to this the view that studying abroad involves s some great expense which would consist of living expenses, university tuition and etc-other expenditures that could make life for students harder than studying in their hometown. Furthermore, although, students are very busy with their studies that occupy them, they should handle the feeling of homesickness which would definitely happen to everyone.,

In conclusion, in spite of the negative facets of studying abroad, in-from my perspective, this-isthese are the benefits of students-to-studying abroad because they-students can experience independency and at the same time ups and downs of life.
