

Some people say that music is a good way of bringing people of different cultures and ages together.

To what extent do you agree or disagree with this opinion?

Music as an art and cultural activity always has gathered a crowd in each condition to ~~having~~ have pleasurable time due to its connection between sense and language which goes back to historical legacy of people. As the increased improvement of international music performances in these years, people in different age groups have been encouraged to know other cultures as well as types of music.

In general, music over the past years has been a sufficient way to announce common beliefs and ideas. Also, people listen to music as an enjoyable hobby and ~~make~~ create memorable moments by accompanying musicians' opinion or usually are being persuaded by it to celebrate their ceremonies, costumes or even reveal their sympathies and protest. Moreover, the enthusiastic audience follow popular singers through various social ~~medium~~ media or attending live performances all over the world as a tourist, so they unconsciously would be familiar with diverse cultures where they ~~present~~ participate in public gatherings among local people. For instance, Asian countries like Korea which are ~~wealthy~~ rich in their cultural background have celebrated their annual ~~costume~~ customs recently by their well-known melody and singers on a national scale that not only have successfully introduced ~~successfully~~ their ~~rich~~ wealth of heritage but also have grown prosperous.

On the other hand, producers are cooperating ~~together~~ around the world to compose innovative music products as well as attracting different age groups or cultures of people to convey their emotion or sometimes political criticism, like many fund-raising concerts which unite numerous people and composers to help other people in poor countries. Furthermore, musical instruments and their harmony and tune are as a symbol of their countries which would be combined in this way, like a ~~bit~~ piece of their culture, so it could recall a strong tradition of each nation in modern society.

In conclusion, music could play a vital role ~~to~~ in bringing individuals together for enjoying and celebrating ceremonies of each culture or ~~invent~~ invite the elderly or adults to accompany teenagers ~~for~~ in expressing their common opinions.