

Compared to previous generations, an increasing number of people are traveling overseas for holidays.

Why is this? Is this a positive or negative trend?

Nowadays, a tourist destination is crowded by a lot of tourist from different nations. There would be several reasons why people have been encouraged to travel to a foreign country in comparison with before.

There is a number of likely explanation why people today have a lot of motivation to go abroad for their holiday. The most obvious one is the improvement ~~the~~ in technology. For, the simple reason, thanks to advances in technology people can travel to other countries especially places which are off the beaten track in a short while by airplane; ~~while~~, in the past, people could not easily arrive at their destination. Another reason might be that they would get familiar with some different cultures s and languages. Some researchers s believes that traveling makes people smarter. not only is ~~does~~ it provide ~~to learn~~ learning ~~the~~ different cultures s but also it might make them as interesting people because many people like to listen to their own experience when they traveled ed to other countries.

~~To make a long story short,~~ besides, traveling could offer a host of benefits to us. One thing that stands out is that it could expand our social network. For instance, when someone travels abroad, they could find some friends and share their good memories and finally, they could find each other into-on Instagram and other applications s to have a long-lasting relationship. Another merit might be that traveling could disconnect you from daily life so that it could lift our sprit and tourist s could find somewhere to be calm.

To sum up, I guess, inthese this days and ages, it is essential to arrange a plan to visit other countries because traveling could broaden our horizons and encourage people to save energy for the rest of their life.
