There is no doubt that students' behavior has caused huge problems for schools for some reasons. However, there are ways to control it.

There are some reasons as to why students have a negative attitude at school. First of all, nowadays parents work for long hours and they do not spend quality time with their ~~kids~~them. As a consequence, children do not get the attention they need and they will act inappropriately. Moreover, these days children are often spoiled because they are allowed to have whatever they want. When they start school they have not been taught to be responsible for their acts. Furthermore, kids are easily affected by television programs and video games. They are watching programs ~~which show~~showing a lot of violence and consequently they are more likely to become aggressive.

However, There are some measures which can be taken to overcome this situation. Not only should parents spend more time with their young charges and give them attention but also there should be a consistency between mother and father in parenting. Besides, parents should limit their kids' screen-time and monitor what they watch to prevent them from having bad behaviors/misbehaving. In order to conquer such issues schools and teachers have responsibilities too. By providing parenting classes, schools can help parents with these problems. Teachers should be friendly with their pupils,. this is the only way to be close to them and figure out their problems. Teachers must never compare one student with another. In addition, students should be encouraged to do physical activities in school such as swimming, running and other sports. These kinds of activities help them to put their energies in a better way.

To sum up, even though students' behavior is an important problem that schools are facing, there are some ways to surmount it.
