

Do you agree or disagree with the following statement? Successful people try new things and take a risks rather than only doing what they know how to do well. Use specific reasons and examples to support your answer.

It is obvious that these kinds of questions can have variable answers because they depends on people's personality and ~~the~~ success can have various concepts from persons ~~to~~ persons. For achieving success, there have many diverse' ways which people can do such as hard working and studying a lot and taking risks. I personally support this statement for a couple of reasons which I explain in this essay.

To begin with, by trying new things you can gain valuable experiences which can help you in all parts of your life or try new things can be like a spark for inventing new things which means you want to take risks. For instance, ice cream companies have a taster person who try-tries different tastes and they combine several things to create a new ice cream. ~~It this~~ is take-taking a risk which has two sides. One side is success that in this example, is an extremely delicious flavor and receiving warm welcoming from customers and the recent product would be popular. The Other side is failure in the project and being refuse-rejected by ~~from~~ the customers.

Last but not least, although doing repeated actions helps us specialize us in that area, this would be really exhausting and make our life quite meaningless, become boring-bored and reduce our creativity. Besides, taking risks encourages us to work harder than before because we know that without trying, we may encounter many difficulties. Also for taking risks we had better ~~to~~ evaluate every part of our decisions in order to meet the possible damage at the lowest rates. Taking a risk is conduces conductive to has high adaptability which means risk takers attain more freedom and flexibility.

Conclusively, taking ~~the~~ risk has become a notable part of our daily life and could be a dangerous gamble but it is the price we have to pay for success because success does not come from nothing and we can access ~~es to~~ valuable experiences, adaptability and hard working.
