

Some people believe that wearing uniforms at schools is a great idea. What is your idea? Specify reasons and examples.

Generally speaking, a vast majority of the populace are of the opinion that students should dress the same due to some reasons. However, I opine that this tradition is quite obsolete. Wearing uniforms at schools by students can be evaluated from various angles one of which is students' identity. Plus, it would kill their creativity.

To begin with, a human's gender is no longer ~~does~~ classified as male and female only. Although most countries nowadays recognize other genders' rights, they still force all students irrespective of their identity to wear unified clothes which can turn to a huge letdown. Due to the fact that people's ~~physics~~ physique does not necessarily match their identity we should not impel them to wear specific clothes. Taking for instance, one of the United States' schools as an instance which lately compelled school girls regardless of their gender to wear skirts as their uniform.

Secondly, wearing uniforms at school, students lose their creativity and will to pick their own clothes. In other words, this policy takes one of their most primary rights away from them. That is why I believe that students should not be made to wear uniforms at school because it is an old-school tradition. According to conducted research on some grownups who barely had the right to choose their clothes in their early years of their life, they have turned to ~~a~~ passive adults in comparison with their counterparts who had rights to choose their outfits. It makes it clear that not only does wearing uniforms ~~does~~ reduce one's creativity but turns one's to a neutral person.

To cut a long story short, the aforementioned points and examples have made it clear that the policy of wearing uniforms at schools in the long run would adversely affect students and should be abolished as soon as possible.
