

Countries are becoming more and more similar because people are able to buy the same products anywhere in the world. Do you think it is a positive or negative development?

Nowadays, people from all over the world can purchase the same commodities from their own countries or any country that they visit. This essay will analyze the favorable and unfavorable features of this kind of globalization.

On the one hand, it is widely accepted that a global village could offer a host of benefits. One thing that ~~is~~ really stands out might be that individuals would be able to find their products from their own country. This would mean that not only does their own country provide them with the chance to save money and time because they do not have to travel to other ~~country~~ countries to buy commodities but also buyers ~~s~~ can return the products, which do not work properly and have malfunction. Another virtue could be that the world could reach a balance in terms of advanced ~~d~~ technology. The main reason might be that scientists ~~s~~ from different nations could share the latest achievements.

On the other hand, stereotypes ~~s~~ in products between different countries could have an array of adverse effects. The most obvious one would be that it might eliminate exclusive merchandise. For instance, some countries might put a considerable attempt to invent ~~a~~ novel goods, so if other countries imitate the same product, the individuality of goods will be ~~faded~~ fading, while they could be a monopoly of a product for that country. Another detrimental effect would be that travelling might decline, ~~this~~ which is worrisome because people would not be encouraged to travel in order to buy clothes, and other products, ~~because~~ since they can provide ~~it~~ them in their own country easily besides it lead ~~s~~ to ~~declining~~ a drastic decline in the rate of ~~tourist~~ tourism industry.

To sum up, from my point of view, although globalization has some benefits, it could be better that each ~~countries~~ country has ~~their~~ its products to indicate individuality, so it could attract millions of people from other countries to purchase this kind of exclusive product.
