

Prison is the common way in most countries to solve the problem of crime. However, a more effective solution is to provide people with a better education. Agree or disagree

Nowadays, the world has witnessed a drastic increase in crime rates which should be controlled by the government. Nevertheless, some groups are of the thought that ~~the~~ incarceration is the only key to slow this trend/reduce this matter, while others believe that education could eliminate the problems from its root which I totally disagree with and I am of the opinion that both approaches have their own distinctive merits in order to address this issue.

On the one hand, first of all, confining offenders and ~~sentence-sentencing~~ them to imprisonment would help increase social security, ~~r_~~ to illustrate this, when those who committed unforgivable crimes like murdering are in incarceration, the risk of such disasters will drop and at the same time ~~this- imprisonment~~ could ensure the safety of other citizens as well. Secondly, being away from beloved ones, lack of freedom and socialization and being kept in a cell, could be a breeding ground for offenders in order to think and learn about their heinous actions.

Having said that, being sentenced to prison, some criminals wouldn't learn from their brutal behaviors and it will not act as deterrent, ~~r_~~ therefore e there should be other factors as well. ~~as my consideration in my estimation~~, education serves as a remedy which ~~helps-leads~~ to a decrease in crime rates. Being educated in school with fundamental laws, students will be able to distinguish the right path in their life and also it enables them to heighten their awareness about the impacts of heinous actions on their life.

To cut a long story short, I believe imprisonment and education are both ~~are~~ two factors which play a vital role in dealing with crimes. Although governments pay close attention to offenders and their behaviors in prison, they should also ~~consider-take~~ their education into ~~the~~ account.