Nowadays, in many countries schools face some problems with students' behaviour. I think schools and family can help them to solve them.

From my point of view, the most important matter which causes some problems in student's-students' behaviour refers to concerns/is related to what happened-happens at their home. The extent amount they feel comfortable helps them to manage d their feelings and behave properly. For example, how much there is intimacy between parents and their children as students help s them to overcome/solve their difficulties better, instead of controlling them strictly. Besides, it improves their self-respect and makes s them happy so they can manage their difficulties well.

To be added, another issue which makes s schools get in trouble with many student's-students' actions refers to the education system that is in charge of the schools. The way they teach them and the amount of flexibility with which teachers communicate with their students effects-affect on them directly. If there are many intertainment-entertainment programs for both teachers and students which make them close to each other more, it will release-alleviate students' problems s.

In conclusion, as I said both parents and teachers should be aware and knowledgeable to know how to behave toward students correctly.
