

The government's investment in arts, music and theater is a waste of money. Governments should invest these funds in public services instead.

To what extent do you agree with this statement?

The yearly fund that ~~are~~is spent on arts, music and theater by the governments, is money wasting in some peoples' view. However, this amount of money would solve many troubles that the major number of citizens deals with every day. I am sure some people would argue that spending money on arts is a waste of money, although it is not all just about financial issues.

On the one hand, building movie theaters, cinemas, concert halls and purpose-built arts buildings which are hardly used by impoverished citizens requires a lot of money. Undoubtedly, all these places are used for recreation which is the low priority in deprived people's lives. For instance, buying theater or cinema's tickets is not affordable for ~~ones~~ those ~~who~~ suffering from poverty. Having a shelter for inner city citizens is absolutely vital that had better be assigned more budget to than arts. For one ~~who~~, does not have enough money to continue ~~whose~~ education, going to museums is the last thing that one should think about. The governments must ~~build~~ schools and universities with full fund for poor people to help them grow in the standard atmosphere ~~in~~ where they improve their skills and change them from poor people to skillful ones. For those ~~who~~ with no skills there can ~~not~~ ~~not~~ be any jobs and without ~~them~~ jobs no money can be earned. In this case in the following years the number of the impoverished citizens will undoubtedly decline.

On the other hand, having world-renowned museums and art galleries is the main cause of having a rich culture, by help of which/whereby the governments can attract more tourists and create more job opportunities. Paris ~~where~~ which is one of the most well-known cities for its famous museums and theaters could be a good example to illustrate this point. Not only do the government's investments ~~on~~ in arts play a crucial role in attracting tourists ~~attraction~~ but also have direct impact on the future of the countries. But it should not be the first priority to do something for. However, it is not as vital as public services.

Lastly, there will be always conflict over investing money ~~on~~in arts. By ~~a~~ good/efficient management, the government should solve public problems on one hand and ~~taking~~take care of the culture on the other hand.
