

Some people believe that parents should pay their children a small amount of money to do jobs around the home (such as washing the dishes or taking out the garbage), while other people believe that parents should not pay their children to do these tasks. Which view do you agree with, and why?

No one can ever deny the significant role of parents in children's life and these kinds of questions can have variable answers because it depends on people's personality and their situations. When I was younger, I would definitely have said that parents should pay children for each work at home but it is a given fact that the benefits of ~~do~~-not paying for jobs around the home to children greatly outweigh the disadvantages and some reasons persuade me to put forward this view which I will explain with a couple of examples.

First and foremost, one of the major bases of families is collaboration and by paying money to children for doing jobs, they cannot comprehend the collaboration concept. For instance, if everyone cleans their own room, there is ~~a~~ less pressure on one of the family members who cleans the whole home.

Another striking point is that, responsibility is one of the most remarkable issues which children should learn at their young age. Assigning some tasks to children at home is conducive to them being more responsible individuals in their future which will be beneficial for them. For example, cooking a meal for the whole family once or twice a week. They understand/feel how hard and time-consuming it is to cook ~~and time-consuming~~.

Last but not least, because the process of learning starts/is started from young ages, by giving money to children for doing any job, they will expect to earn money for all of their tasks in the future. For instance, being a ~~nice~~-decent person is an important ~~duty~~-quality for every human which costs nothing/little.

To cut a long story short, although some parents pay money to their children for motivating them to do/undertake diverse duties at home, it causes irrecoverable damages for their future life because not only ~~cannot~~-can't they/can they not comprehend collaboration and responsibility concepts but also they get used to ~~receive~~-receiving money for each obligation.
