

Do you agree or disagree with the following statement?

It is difficult for teachers to be both popular (liked by children) and effective in helping students in learning.

It is obvious that schools are one of the best places where children can prepare for their future and no one can ever deny the significant role of teachers in children's life. I totally agree with this statement and some reasons persuade me to put forward this view which I will explain with a couple of examples.

First and foremost, behaving strictly toward~~with~~ children is one of the remarkable ways, thereby being successful and it is a given fact that pupils like this treatment rarely. Not only can kind teachers not behave strictly but also children do not ~~obedience-obey~~obey from them, so it cannot be beneficial for pupils' educating. For instance, by setting ~~up~~ping some rules for classes such as not coming late after the teacher or being silent while teaching not only is it practical for children's educating but also they be familiar with responsibility concepts.

Another striking point is that students cannot cope with working hard or a lot of homework whereby pupils access achievement and this factor is conducive to being an unappealing teacher. For example, one of my ~~friend's~~friends' teachers quizzed students every week from the amount she had taught whereby pupils could get ~~pleasant~~ideal results in their final exams.

Last but not least, keeping the class more quite is another point which is efficient and a third reason why I believe that being both popular and effective is not attainable fundamentally owing to the fact that schools are the best place where children can get in touch with their friends for a long hour, so they keep talking during the class and it makes the class more chaotic, so teachers should be more aggressive to be able to keep the class quiet and this ~~places~~ is not children's favorite. For instance, a few months ago, I read a magazine which wrote about the positive impact of the classroom silence and students' learning.

To cut a long story short, although popular teachers ~~are~~ always stick in pupils' minds, according to the above reasons the effective ones are more appropriate for their future.
