

The Developed and Developing Countries

Developed countries (DC) consist of some countries that have a high economy growth. We know these countries by high income countries names too, like the US, Italy, the Netherlands, Sweden and etc. The contrast of DC is Developing countries or Undeveloped countries (UDC).

These countries have a low economic growth, the so-called small economy. These days economy and political—politics are the most important thing—factors/parameters in international relationships in the world. Power economy and best position in political can to make-lead to a powerful position in the world like the US, or China. China-the latter after improved-improving its economy, get-obtained political power politics—in the world. China improved its economic—economy by two things 1. Inexpensive labor 2. Supporting produce and producer. These days china-China has controlled the coronaviruscorona viruses, just imagine if chain was a poor country or UDC, it—could itcan management this situation—corona with 1.393 billion (in 2018) population? chains—chinese people changed their mind and then changed their life. They accept that everyone must be rich in their country and then China began to would be rich and developed ed.

Iran is a wealthy country in aspect of labor, environment, and natural resources s. Maybe when I said natural resources s you think about oil or different mines but we have diversity in animals, plants, and in the environment, diversity in seasons s atin the same time. I think for first step of development ment, we should change our minds and learn the development culture.
