

Some people believe that allowing children to make their own choices on everyday matters (such as food, clothes and entertainment) is likely to result in a society of individuals who only think about their own wishes. Other people believe that it is important for children to make decisions about matters that affect them. Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

There is a notion that children should be allowed to choose their decisions such as what they wear, eat or select for their hobby personally. Others believe this trend is more likely to help children just consider themselves and become selfish people in society.

On the one hand, when parents and teachers allow children to choose their daily issues, children are more likely to learn to be independent people. To put it clearly, children who have been allowed to make their choices will feel both a keen sense of responsibility and self-confidence that are the vital factors ~~to-in become-becoming~~ an independent person. Take children who are allowed to choose their clothes as an example; firstly, they should consider the weather and Predict it for the following hours. Secondly, they try to match their clothes together so they have to consider these factors carefully that not only will they make them more independent, but they also feel more responsible when they are shopping or taking care of their clothes.

On the other hand, if children always do not let their parents or teachers guide them sometimes in their choices, they will increase chances of becoming selfish. That is to say, they are always concerned ed just about what they want, and they do not consider other people. For example, the family has been invited to a party ~~to which~~ that they should wear special clothes or a tuxedo, so if their child insists on wearing his favorite clothes, the family could face a challenging situation due to his selfishness.

In conclusion, it is essential for children to learn to make choices in their day-to-day life and parents must teach them to respect the decisions and choices of others.
