

Nowadays, we are living in a throw-away society. What are its causes and what are its problems? What could be done to address this issue?

It could be universally accepted that a large majority of people, who live all around the world, do not consume food, water resources, and also their other ~~their~~-properties properly. This essay will discuss how this kind of lifestyle would impact on our lives and future generations and also consider some steps that can be adopted to iron out the troubles which is-are associated to such.

There are a number of likely explanations s why people throw away clothes and equipment while they are still working. This is because of the advent of the technology that some consumers are putting aside their own stuff and utilize-utilizing up-to-the-minute gadgets, while they are working appropriately. Example of such consumption would be that the users are keen to wear the latest fashion clothes and drive a luxurious car and be encouraged to throw away their clothes and other accessories. This would mean that some people seek to show off their latest purchases, which might be a kind a status symbol in some societysocieties. This kind of living, hence/gradually, would cause some adverse condition for our ecosystem and it is probable that our environment will be upset.

Although-however, these troubles are not insurmountable/insolvable provided that an appropriate measure is adopted. The most practical way could be that consumers should use their stuff-goods as long as they perform/work as appropriately/well as they are it is working suitably. Moreover, consumers could endeavor to separate their garbage into a different package, then put it into the recycle bin. This process of separating tools in place, in the long run, result in recycling process being easy in dump site.

To sum up, from my point of view, the government should raise ~~the~~ public awareness about changing their lifestyle and using their stuff-commodities as long as until they work correctly; moreover, ~~implying-~~ applying a strict ~~role-rule~~ on separating rubbish in different parts before throwing them away ~~them~~.
