Using a computer everyday can have more negative than positive effects on young children.

Do you agree or disagree?

I tend to agree that young children can be negatively affected by spending too much time on the ~~compute4r~~ computer every day. For instance, sitting in front of a screen for too long can threaten their health specially their eyes and ~~their~~ physical posture.

However, the main concern is that, usually children especially juveniles use the computer for playing games that most of them are ~~violence~~violent. In addition, the player is so impressed by the game that they get addicted to it. ~~The~~ too much exposure can encourage children to be anti-social and insensitive to others.

Even, when children use the computer in a correct way such as getting some information or searching something for their schoolwork purposes, this fact that they are drowning in ~~to~~ the non-virtual world is undeniable, and this would have effect~~ed~~ on their future social behavior.

In spite of this, because of the development of ~~the~~ technology, children have to learn how to use the computer. Their adult world is dependent on ~~the~~ technology, and the computer and the internet are two important factors that everyone ~~have~~ has to have knowledge about them.

At the end, I believe that spending too much time on the screen is harmful, but we cannot forbid our children ~~to~~ not to use the computer, ~~be~~cause nowadays computers are one of the most significant gadgets in the world. Therefore, in my opinion parents should establish, impose, place, put, set ~~make~~ some limits for their children about this tool and control their time that is ~~spending~~ spent on the screen.
