

A live performance vs. television broadcast

Some people like to attend a live performance such as a melodrama, a concert or a sport match while others think that watching the same event on television is more enjoyable. People differ greatly in their attitudes toward this choice. Which one I prefer depends on my experience, lifestyle and emotional concerns. To be frank, I mostly prefer watching television broadcast ~~most in~~ (from my point of view).

First of all, attending a live performance has troubles of its own. Not only must one ~~must~~ consider the timing deadlines of purchasing the tickets, but also one he/she has to pay attention to the variation of the ticket's price which may change during the time period allocated. In my country the price rate doesn't have a logical manner fashion and also it has got a name "Black Market" which circulates among people and it happens when some people buy a bunch of tickets online and then sell them it by their its-multiplied price. So attending a live performance sometimes may cost three/3 or even four/4 times more expensive than the price of the ticket itself.

The other disadvantages of attending a live performance is about the time which has to be allocated for a live performance. If one wants to attend the performance on time, he/sheone has to arrive there at least 4 hours earlier early due to the limited parking lots and also the crowd. On the contrary, watching a the live performance at home, where one can make oneself him/herself a cup of coffee, sitting back comfortably and relaxing, switching to the channel just the time it starts and watching the show closely and enjoying the realistic image and sound from the home theater system has its own joy ~~itself~~.

The conclusion that can be drawn from all of these is that attending a live performance despite all of its difficultiesy and extra costs, is not doesn't worth in many aspects kinds. Meanwhile, there can be some exceptions. For instance, If you are the fan of the team which is playing, one fons-of, it may be worth the cost which has to be paid paied and the time allocated.