

It is generally believed that some people are born with certain talents, for instance for sport and music, and others are not. However, it is sometimes claimed that any child can be taught to become a good sports person or musician.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

There have been a wide a large number of humans from ordinary ones to politicians and super rich who can have relative huge impacts on a many people, but few of them could drastically change our life. Being brainy smart or having a talent can play a pivotal role in our destiny but it is not enough.

Some maintain that each objective can be fulfilled by individuals, if they really long for it and extremely attempted ed at achieving it. They give some instances like Edison who experiment ed ing with a lot of ways to invent a light bulb and always failed. To this end, he did not become disappointed and kept doing until so that he managed to satisfy his desire and thousands of people have enjoyed his invention.

Other people believe that the a number of persons who have revolutionized our life are not very huge.

Surely, we all know some people in each spectrum those who not only are successful and probably rich, but also they meet these goals with no high attempts just by depending on their gifts. On the other hand, many people cannot reach in a proper position, although ~~However~~, they may do their best. apply themselves

As far as I am concerned, talent has a much effect on all aspects of our life, but you should find your gift and learn how to use it. Besides, sometimes we can raise some abilities inside us by some actions like seeing and trying experiencing various experiences things.

To sum up, if we believe in talent for doing fulfilling our duties well, it can lead us to being lazy with no morale.