

Successful sports professionals can earn a great deal more money than people in other important professions. Some people think this is fully justified while others think it is unfair discuss both these views and give your opinion.

In recent decades, more attention has been ~~focused on~~ attracted to the famous sportsmen and all their aspects of life. Even the amount of earnings has been an interesting and debatable issue for all. Some people believe adept sportsmen deserve their high earnings, while others do not agree and consider it ~~as~~ discrimination.

Sportsmen's fans who are keen on watching and following matches ~~are~~ mostly believe highly skillful sportsmen are unique who bring fame and fortune for their country. They asserted that not only do they attract world attention to themselves but also their country has gained a specific position for the sake of their sportsmen's efforts.

Furthermore, they declare that period of time that sportsmen could gain a large amount of money is usually short. Most of the famous sportsmen have the golden time in which they might gain almost more than three quarters of the money they could earn through their life. ~~this is to say,~~ that they would not necessarily gain much more money than other professionals on average during their life. Besides, most of the sportsmen are prone to lose their physical health ~~during competitions in most of the sports~~. There are ample/lots of examples of famous ski champions who are being paralyzed for life just because of minor carelessness, so they gain more money because of the high risk of their job.

On the other hand, some others believe that although famous professionals in sport have unique and rare talent that should be valued, there are lots of other geniuses and talented scientists who make enormous changes in world life that not only might not they gain even approximately half of sportsmen's income ,but also a minority of them have been even known.

In conclusion, while sportsmen's proponents believes that talented sportsmen who gain fame deserve lots of wealth and attraction, others think that their income is not commensurate with their attempts compared d with other professions. I do believe authorities should pay attention and appreciate both talented scientists and sportsmen in order to push the boundaries of science alongside gaining more ranking in championships.