

Agree or Disagree: Always telling the truth is the most important consideration in any relationship between people?

Were I ~~have~~ to choose between ~~the~~ two options, I would definitely prefer to be a completely ly honest person in my relationships, especially in close ~~intimate~~ ones. Expressing the truth is the most crucial ~~crutial~~ point in any bond. Honesty holds lots of advantages like strengthening relationships, staying in a circle of trust and preventing any possible misunderstandings.

Although an honest person may lose his face before/in front of people by and- indicatinges the reality, telling the truth can guarantee the relationship's consistence. In romantic relationships where that partners start the relationship with the dream of it's_ its consistency, they have to tell the truth in order to save their bonding. At the beginning, it may be considered as a sad speech between parties but, later, they can understand each other's situations and reach to this belief that they are enough trustworthy enough to stay with each other. Furthermore, no one dares to harm their relationship.

Relationship without trust is just like a car without gas. You can sit seat and be in it but it will not take you any anywhere. When partners share what they think, believe or do, they are trying to assure make each other sure that there is are nothing that prompts them to doubt about each other. Being honest in a relation may help them feel comfortable and safe enough to tell anything related to their relation to each other. Consequently, they will be certain that nonee of them will let each other down.

When you are expressing the truth, nothing may worry you about the relationship since you showed your loyalty to your partner~~the it~~. Thus, you feel completely relaxed; the atmosphere of relationship will be with much less ~~without any~~ tension. If any party releases himself from the guilt of dishonesty, he will regret nothing later. Therefore, honesty can do magic and prevent any likely misunderstanding in the relationship. In case that anyone any one plans to give wrong information about parties to them, their bond is strong enough not to ~~not~~ believe others.

To sum up, although some rare reactions have happened that may contradict that telling the truth puts you in trouble, the one who has the power of good concept in life matters can build a very strong life~~live~~-long bond. Due to all of these reasons, telling the truth is the most fundamental issue in the relationship which should be considered as a rule in it.