in some countries young people are encouraged to work or travel for a year between finishing high school and starting university studies.

Discuss the advantages and disadvantages for young people who decide to do this.

Nowadays it is very common that young people like to have a break between university and high school. This time can be spent on working or traveling. It is evident that the richest students choose traveling rather than working.

The best thing about working before passing to university is that they can gain experience in social life besides earning money. In contrast to those who have not any social experience, the student who has is worked before university has more ability to tackle with problems. on the one hand, being independent is a vital factor for academic study and research that is more reachable by this kind of student, since facing with problems makes them to stand on their own two feet.foot.

On the other hand, working or traveling before university can be dangerous. From a perspective, working before university can distance make young adults be away from educational environment, thus it will be more difficult to readapt to readopt with such an environment, in addition, working makes young adults being more independent in contrast to their peers, therefore, they prefer to continue in a particular job rather than losing loosing independence, and being with their peers. I think academic qualification is essential for getting a brilliant job, so it cannot can not be dangerous.

In my opinion students s should be encouraged d to broaden their horizons. I suppose working or traveling before university can shape a young adult into a mature one, but they should be aware not to ~~do not~~ lose their way during this gap/year.
