

Task:

some people believe that unpaid community service should be a compulsory part of high school programmes (for example working for a charity, improving the neighbourhood or teaching sports to younger children).

To what extent do you agree or disagree?

Nowadays, in some countries high schools force their students to do unpaid community service. Although this method of volunteering has some benefits, I partly agree with this method and partly disagree. In this essay I will discuss my views.

On the one hand, I ~~believed~~ believe that unpaid community service ~~have~~ has some benefits for students. This kind of work, besides ~~hone~~ honing pupils' social skills, ~~creates~~ makes a sense of altruism ~~humor~~ in them. For example, being in society is an essential factor for volunteers, so they can make friends easily and spend more time with other people. In many unpaid services, ~~Volunteers~~ participants should be attended among the people who have difficulty in their life, thus they should be more sympathetic with humankind. In other words, they should have a sense of humor to do such a job.

On the other hand, I strongly believe that nobody likes to do compulsory duties because this is the spirit of humankind to resist ~~against~~ force, so if students have been forced to do things by their schools, they will be bored and demotivated. For instance, a student who ~~have been~~ forced to do an unpaid work can look to that as a homework and ~~don't~~ not do it from the bottom of his/her heart and it is in contrast to the main purpose of contribution in unpaid community service.

As a conclusion, I believe that these days our society needs more volunteers and schools are the best places to raise a sense of volunteering, but a decisive factor in this case is the method that schools use to encourage students to do unpaid community service. I suppose schools should encourage students to ~~be~~ volunteer rather than force them.

Time: 60 min

Sources: 1 essay