IELTS Cambridge 10 (Test 4)

Many museums charge for admission while others are free. Do you think the advantages of charging people for admission to museums outweigh the disadvantages?

Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience.

It is prevalent that people have to pay entrance fee for many museums around the world, but I personally believe that by making the museums free of charge, not only would a greater number amount of people be interested in visiting museums, but also we can achieve the goal of making a huge portion of the population familiar with their history and culture.

The first and foremost result of not charging people for museums is being able to attract more visitors and even more tourists in many cities. In that circumstance/hence tourists are not paying for museums but they have to spendt money for the other facilities and tourist attractions which could generate income/revenue make profit for governments. For instance, I traveled to London last year and due to seeing myself with facing a lot of free museums, I spent most of my time visiting them and it was the a great opportunity for me to being be familiar with English people's past era believes beliefs and civilization.

In contrast, some people believe that museums and galleries costs a lot for maintenance and it-they cannot survive just by donations and without sailing selling tickets. From those persons'their point of view museums are the best sources of information for educational purposes and people should spend money for their personal improvement in many aspects of science.

In conclusion, I would argue that by omitting admission to for Museums people from all walks of life/all ranges try to spend^t some of their free times on those places which would help rising raising public awareness about their ancient ancestors' lifestyle and even their traditional costumescustoms.
