

Nowadays everyone likes to travel. Some people travel alone while others prefer to travel in a group. Discuss both approaches. Give your own opinion with relevant examples from your experience.

Traveling has become one of the most popular activities among/amongst people to spend their leisure time. While some ~~people~~ travel alone, there are ~~some~~ others who choose to travel with/in a group. After choosing the destination, traveling alone or in a group is one of the mainly permanent questions whenever I want to travel, and as both choices has-have its own merits and demerits my votes goes for both of them.

I think it goes without saying that most people prefer to travel with a group of people who have something in common. Sometimes friends plan to travel, and from my point of view these kinds of journeys are unforgettable. As an example, I still can remember my classmates and I went to Antalya about eight years ago and whenever we see each other, we start remembering good old memories of that travel. I can remember there were some other tourists from other countries who were alone who joined us and are still connected with us via social networking services.

On the other hand, sometimes I prefer to travel alone to relax and forget about the hectic pace of life I am currently involved with. I think everyone needs some time to think and concentrate on his-their plans and way of living. I occasionally travel alone to do meditations and recharge my mental energy. Disappointedly lost and tired in this world, ~~there are~~ some ~~people who~~ travel to nature to enjoy the peace and quiet in untouched/pristine jungles and high mountainous areas.

In conclusion, I think while it is definitely enjoyable to travel with close friends and relatives it is necessary for everyone to travel alone to have more attention to his-their spirituality and stop spending time with others. I strongly hold the idea that striking e a balance in life is one of the most important factors successful people always follow, so from my point of view both approaches are correct and has-have some advantages.