

Scientists predict that all people will choose to talk the same global language in the future.

Do you think this is a positive or negative development?

Although it is predictable ~~which that~~ we will have a globally unique language in the future, it ~~has will have~~ some disadvantages. ~~For instance, loosing cultures such as loss of culture,~~ which some societies will be faced with, whereas using the same language can help experts to both understand and convey researches and findings in an appropriate way.

At first, the language of each country is ~~its the~~ identity ~~of that country~~. In other words, we could recognize ~~either both~~ countries or people in the whole world with their languages, slogans, the color of their skins and much more besides. Secondly, all societies tend to preserve both their cultures and traditions by alternative methods. One of these (strategies) is both living keeping alive and using their official language ~~of each country~~.

On the other hand, first and foremost, utilizing one internationally ~~ly one~~ language paves the way for both suitable and strong interactions with other nations. The better way we pick up/choose for our contact, the more effective in terms of politics/ politically. Not only does it help us in our social behavior, but also it is beneficial science-wise. For instance, nowadays the number of people who use the English language ~~is are~~ on the rise. ~~due Due~~ to the fact that most of the articles are published in English. That making use of it is a reliable pattern is indisputable, but it should not end in dependence.

In conclusion, from my point of view, the benefits of choosing the same world language outweighs s the disadvantages. Although we gradually become strange with other ancient cultures, instead, we have an accurate interpretation of the speech of each other.
