

Art is considered an essential part of all cultures throughout the world. However, these days fewer and fewer people appreciate art and turn their focus to science, technology and business. Why do you think that is? What could be done to encourage more people to take interest in the arts?

Due to the fact that we live in a highly modern tech-time, most people are following a hectic life style. They are in touch with computerized systems and do their duties at their workplace through them. This situation has caused some changes in their life and lead to paying less attention to art works. In addition, there are numerous viable reasons and possible solutions that in this essay will be discussed.

One notable reason is changing the people's lifestyle. That members of the public used to do most their jobs manually is an undeniable fact, hence they were way more sensitive about what they did. However, nowadays most jobs are done by some computerized systems. It means that employees just work with some instruments and take the results of their deeds less into consideration. What is more, the changes in curriculum is another issue. drawing a comparison between the schools' program in the past and now, we can easily find it out that during previous decades teachers concentrated much more on teaching art subjects such as painting and playing musical instruments. On the contrary, current curriculum just insist on scientific subjects and put less values on doing handicraft.

Not only do the role of art in people's life is undeniable, but also we cannot be reluctant in terms of tackling this situation. That is why we should work on the solutions too. For example, the government had better provoke pupils at primary schools to do art works and notify their parents regarding the benefits of doing these works for their charges. The more encouraging the student, the more creative they will be. For example, by throwing a competition at school regarding art works, they can make them much more eager to learn new abilities and work on it.

On the whole, from my point of view art is a completely significant area of concern and the government should allocate certain amounts of budgets on improving it to got a decent position in the society.
