It is necessary to parents to attend parenting course to bring their children up.

Do you agree or disagree?

Due to modernization, many perfections have been expected to improve our lifestyles one of which is parenting. There are classes that are being hold in order to our children have the best possible start in life. However, there are opponents and proponents for such developments.

To begin with, parenting courses are classes where parents consult experts about their children upbringing. Not only does these classes help parents in terms of behavior, but they also can teach parents to how they should take care of children's physics. To exemplify, parents can receive a fairly proper regime for their kids from those early ages lest they face diseases in future. Furthermore, consulters are able to assist our children in revealing their inner talent. Having said that, a developmental way will be introduced exactly the time that children are starting to nurture their talent. The more talent, the better off their future. Thus, this pivotal role of courses cannot be denied.

On the other hand, many opine that nowadays thanks to the internet we have access to a large variety of information about how to rearing a child and we should not pay a great deal of money on those courses. In addition, some people believe that we can raising a child in the way that our grandparents do. In other words, they argue that our ancestor's way of living has been achieved by experience and is more reliable compared with the new knowledge.

In conclusion, there are strong arguments on both sides of the debate. After analyzing I am of the opinion that our ancestor's/ancestors' methods of children upbringing are as valuable as the new one. Therefore, having them alongside would be a proper approach.
