

Do you agree or disagree with the following statement? Protecting the Environment is the responsibility of the government. Use specific reasons and examples to support your opinion.

There is no doubt that environmental protection is one of the most significant challenges of the global community. Also, this problematic issue has been is growing rapidly, in recent decades. Therefore, there is an ongoing debate about the role of governments among the experts and also as well as people.

To some extent, I agree with the opinion which emphasizes on government role importance more than the community. I believe that the government can intervene via being leadership of the citizens and NGOs. For example, authorities can raise make concern by increasing public awareness through teaching environmental protection solutions s at schools, regulating rules and fines about overconsumption of resources or industrial and individual recycling of wastes. On the other hand, the government, itself is responsible for resource management, . for example, it should control and plan for construction of dams and roads which can affect on ecosystems and make create loss of biodiversity, vastly.

However, it is not an illogical opinion that the main action should start from individuals. It is believed that we can make a difference because everyday choices s and acts s of everyone has have a great impact on society and the world. For example, refusing to take plastic bags from shops by consumers forces industries to change the way of producing and packaging.

So overall, I believe that both the government and individuals are responsible for environmental protection while the best result will occur by cooperating. Of course, the government duty about this issue is more fundamental and also without the guidance of government a lot of energy and time will be wasted.

Mona Meschi