Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience.

These days, students' behavior is one of the fundamental problems which has become widespread at schools. There are several elements which can cause this phenomenon and some steps should be taken to tackle them.

There are different reasons which have a significant influences on the way that students behave. First and foremost, improper parenting creates a situation in which children may have this opportunity to do whatever they want. Not obeying (ing) the school rules can be a textbook example in this regard. The second factor refers to tutors who are not well-educated in managing classrooms. Such mismanagements might lead classes to be less efficient, so it could pose an anarchic environment. Finally, students may have some role models who are not decently behavedd and they might follow them as their role model/symbol in terms of fashion and attitude and therefore, the more time they spend on this issue, the less they would probably focus on their education.

Although these factors may have many impacts on children's behavior, some solutions are introduced to prevent these problems. From my point of view, parenting takes precedence over is-prioritize-to other elements, so parents should dedicate more time {to concentrating} on raising children. Teachers on the other hand, should be trained to be able to control the way students behave in the classroom. To put this issue in perspective, lecturers can make students to contribute toin some activities related to their course /their course-related activities. Last but not least, celebrities should be required to observe some rules appropriately in public. This is because some school children might idolize them and imitate their attitudes and activities.

In conclusion, there are a variety of factors which are a testament to this trend among students at schools, but I opine that managing this phenomenon should be in preference to other elements.
