That parents have a vital role in children's success in the future is indisputable, due to the fact that children's rearing methods influence their coming lives and also it has a superior importance for the community.

Although some laws that parents introduce for their children look unfair, they are so-extremely useful for children. Because children get used to respecting ing the rules. A case in point, my parents obliged me and also my siblings to wake up soon and eat our breakfast when we went to school. Not only is-was it beneficial for us that-timesthen in terms of understanding our lessons, but also now, I benefit from their behavior. To put it simply, if I get up soon, I will have time to do some relaxation activities and also get ready in a proper time and most importantly, be in a good temper during the day.

On the other hand, crime figures have risen, besides most of them are rooted in their childhood. Only when we invest in our small community called family, can we ~~can~~ expect to have a safe society, ~~do-we invest in our small community called family~~, hence families are the pillar of every society. The more parents make their every effort to raise children in a proper way, the more we have both law-abiding and successful citizens.

In a nutshell, it is incumbent on parents to nurture their children for the betterment of society as a whole. A society where individuals¹ pay attention to their children's adults lives is a suitable place for living, ~~while-when~~ it adapts-adopts a proper policy.
