In contrast, there are some people who are satisfied to earn as much money as they need. I, personally, believe that to have a good lifestyle, money is very important. In addition, it is not deniable that many problems are solved just by money. Especially in my country there are a lot of economic problems and if you cannot get enough money you would not live comfortablye. Suitable education, Good nutrition and enjoying life and even all other aspects of life depend on money.

It should be mentioned that some-times working hard is not a choice. People work hardly despite themirselves in order for their family to survive. Particularly in thirdworld countries they have to work hard to have just a medium level life.

I want to acknowledge that I would like to be a rich woman some day. But making enormous amounts of muny money is not my goal.

In-from my point of view, there is nobody who hates money. Life has several aspects and we should not sacrifice even one of them to makeing more money. It is very important that every one finds out what are his their final goals are and never forget them. Also we should try hard to achieve them. People get as much money as they try and need and they should not ignore the quality of life

To conclude, It does not matter how much money you want to earn. The main reason that you make money for it is the an only important thing and a greate deal!
