When a country develops its technology, the traditional skills and ways of life die out, it is pointless to try and keep them alive.

To what extent do you agree or disagree with this opinion.

Over the years, cultur~~ale's~~ale's traditions ~~has~~ have faded out through the technology growth. Today, one of the most controversial issues that has emerged is ~~that~~ whether we should try to preserve the traditional values of different countries or in contrast, we have to let them go and keep moving forward. In this essay I will explore both standpoints before sharing my personal opinion of each.

On the one hand, some people believe that~~,~~ technologica~~ly~~l revolution is the best thing that has ever happen~~ed~~ to human being~~s~~. Before, many people were dying from different disease~~s~~ every day.~~ ~~While, nowadays, medical science has improved up to a point where people rarely suffer from chronic illnesses. Furthermore, many labor jobs have been replaced by robots these days, hence less pressure on individuals and physical harmful activities. Meanwhile, the gradual disappearance of many old-aged traditions is undeniable, which we should try to embrace positively.

On the other hand, some socialist~~s/~~sociologists feel that any society's culture has its roots in domestic traditions. If we let modernity ~~to~~ eradicate humans' origins, step by step, the world would become more and more a boring place~~s~~. Everyone in every countr~~yies~~y just acting the same, no matter from which ancestor they are. ~~In~~ from this viewpoint, people try to save at least those symbolic traditions, which could keep their souls alive other than their corps~~e~~.

At last, in my opinion, the main conclusion to be drawn from this discussion is that~~,~~ although recent technologica~~ly~~l improvements ~~has~~ have protected human beings physically, taking some old traditions into consideration could help people to find solace and remember where they come from, which could significantly make them more confident.
