

The only way to improve road safety is to impose severe punishment for driving offences. Do you agree?

At-in recent years, one of the most painful fatalities has been due to road accidents. Many of the road accidents are caused by carelessness and negligence of drivers. Many of the drivers are drunk or eat sleep slipspills.

On the one hand, governments should consider rigid retribution and strict low laws for offences-offending drivers, for example ceasing their driving license and not to let them driveing for some days. There should be monetary fines and imprisonments for drunk drivers.

On the other hand, Police should be breaking-enforce the traffic rules such as preventing running unfit vehicles, wearing the seat belt, and also traffic system should be modernized.

To Conclude, my personal opinion is to educate the people before issuance of the licenses, when someone will-knows about every bit of law and keepsing in mind the consequences of violation then there will be least-higher chances of performed-respecting the law and keeping-remaining safetheir life. punishment for driving offences is good way to make the roads safer.
