

Today more and more tourists are visiting places where conditions are difficult, such as Sahara desert or the Antarctic.

What are the benefits and disadvantages for tourists who visit such places?

Nowadays, there has been an obvious inclination in touristic destinations to more adventurous places. This change in tourists' attitudes has both negative and positive effects on ~~their~~them physically and emotionally ~~perspectives~~. They ~~would~~will be more at stake of being maimed ~~meanwhile~~while they enjoy their voyage more.

As economy grows and people ~~commence~~begin to enjoy~~enjoying~~ stabilized income, they start to spend their free time travelling, which for some might ~~occur~~e more than twice a year. As time goes on, people who have visited common places such as Paris and some popular resorts, ~~wouldn't~~ find them ~~grasping~~attractive anymore and ~~would~~ opt to have ~~journeys~~s to places whose conditions are more harsh, since this choice would make them feel alive more, because of more Adrenaline ~~estrayed~~secreted. Besides that, they feel the difficulties endured by the locals permanently and might devise schemes to increase the quality of their lives in terms of donation programs.

Meanwhile, considering the type of ~~the~~trip as a whole, some negative aspects might ~~stoke~~strike our minds. Such harsh and difficult places are generally associated with risk and danger. Deserts~~—~~— For instance, are full of poisonous reptiles, and with attack of some of them, a person would definitely die in less than an hour and since these places are generally deprived of up-to-date emergency equipment, the unfortunate tourist would ultimately die.

All in all, people whose ~~tension~~intention is to visit places with more devastating conditions, should be aware that despite the pleasure they feel and living the life to the end, they must take preventive ~~measure~~sments to assure themselves of a safe trip.
