

Some people regard work as the most important thing in the life and have little interest in anything else. Other people are more enthusiastic about their hobbies and leisure interest than their jobs.

Discuss both these attitudes and give your own opinion

Matured individuals reveal some habits established in their personality. One of them is the way they spend the main portion of their time. Some are highly committed to their careers and some others are keen on spending long hours on their entertainments. This essay is going to discuss both two groups.

The first group, who are highly focused on their jobs, are more introverted without that much enthusiasm-enthusiasm in communication with the publics. Studying their behaviors in their childhood exhibits that they were more interested in staying at home watching television and playing with some tools lonely, hence their pleased-satisfaction withof being alone in their adulthood. As a result, whenever they grow they will not get nervous or anxious due to lack of enough social relations despite the fact that it seems to be irrational for society.

On the other hand, there is a group of people who are highly interested in outdoor amusements, looking for entertainments and eager to enjoy their leisure activities. That these individuals spend time to-on their hobbies and decide based on their passions, there are healthier physically and mentally. Recent researches have exhibited that concentration on positive sides of life leads to a happier life that could assure you of the prosperous future. Although at the first glance it seems that these guys are not that much aware of the real life, as they are empowering their unconsciousness, they are highly capable and strong enough to cope with life and to prosper.

In conclusion, as I do not agree with those whose jobs are their first priority and do engage with the other group, I do always recommend it-tothat my friends to-follow their interests to attain the-real happiness in their lives.