Nowadays celebrities are more famous for their glamour and wealth than for their achievement and this sets a bad example to young people.

To what ~~extend~~ extent do you agree or disagree?

In this day and age, with increasing fame of celebrities and being known, rich and elegant, ~~interesting~~ interest ~~in~~for being a celebrity has risen among the youths. I roughly agree with this idea, although it is true that everyone likes to become famous making lots of money, the main point is how much people know about their real life and problems.

Indeed, becoming a national or local celebrity needs passing a lot of different courses coming along many problems. For instance, there are a large number of people wanting to be known as affluent while the celebrities' society needs a few of them, so the chance of accepting is extremely low. Furthermore, the ~~variation~~ variety of celebrities' jobs ~~are~~ is limited.

Moreover, some celebrities' jobs are really different than our imagination. For example, actors usually play a role for many years to produce a movie and they have to make up diversely or even live far away ~~of~~ from their family. In addition, their life expenses are more than the other people because their private life ~~are~~ is on the attention of photographers and reporters and if they wear a casual dress, not only do they damage ~~on~~ their professional career, but also it can have effect on their private life because some of their wives ~~got~~ married them due to their fame and their income.

In conclusion, whereas young people do not know more about celebrities, they suppose it is really easy and joyful to become a celebrity whilst celebrities spend a lot of harsh time on their life, doing their best effort to reach their goal. However, people see their life ~~from~~ on the TV and judge them from their own thinking, hence ~~tending~~ tendency of youths to become a celebrity.