

Countries are becoming more and more similar because people are able to buy the same products anywhere in the world. Do you think this is a positive or negative development?

With fact of globalization, people appear on the same look and thoughtfulness. These days, we can access to every goods which we need without considering where they are. There is no limitation to catch a new idea, information and data regardless of whether where they have produced. These are an inevitable actuality in the following centuries which human was confronted with. I believe that this situation has positive step towards the global advancement.

In the 21th centuries, human is able to make most of the impossible matters which were unreachable before that, possible. There is no doubt that they will obtain more success in the future. As a result of the progress of technology we can offer special and rare drugs by an immediate search on the internet. It takes around one or two weeks to deliver. Another example is to find easily a foreign or local food such as sushi, a kind of Japanese food, for ourselves or our foreign friends in our country. Another example is that in Iran, most of the fleets made by foreign countries and directly imported there or just assembled by Iranian workers. This clearly shows that due to such globalized world everything is possible and accessible.

The important effects of globalized world are that all the human beings have the same opportunities to have whatever they desire for. There has seen a broad fair spread out to whole of the societies. It applies to other aspects of developments of countries. In the field of sciences, it causes people around the world to be aware of the new findings in every subject. Accessing easily to the all information and data by scientists, expert and also ordinary people make all human societies excessively friendly. Moreover, the presence of the productive big companies in the developing countries makes opportunity to have some products as the holders of countries and beside that creating job for destination country. Despite the feeling equality among people around the world and declining in racism, there is a pessimistic view that cause air pollution happened and culture shock occurred.

To conclude, simulation is inherently suitable for every country and makes the world more comfortable and convenient. It might spread out luxurious life somewhat. I am of the opinion that the advantages of such development outweigh its pitfalls.
