

It is important for children to learn the difference between right and wrong at an early age. Punishment is necessary to help them learn this distinction.

To what extend do you agree or disagree with this opinion? What sort of punishment should parents and teachers be allowed to use to reach good behavior to children?

This is a controversial subject throughout each level of society without any concern to nationalities and geographical borders. However, punishment has been inevitable part of children upbringing.

Majority of developed countries are aware as to how growing children from the early ages is major so that they believe that if children does not have proper situation in childhood they will not be a useful member of society. Punishment split into the two segments, physically and verbally which each of them has the specific details which are very prominent.

According to research, physical is suggested only from parents in indispensable situations as opposed to teachers that have to be allowed to punish verbally. Moreover, it is proven that hitting children can have bad consequence for their futures in terms of psychological manner in their attitude throughout the society. for example, a person with a lack of confidence because of physical punishment in his childhood will not be very successful among his peers .Another matters that parents face is how much intensive the punishment would be to prevent children from being aggressive and irritable. Because of these concerns media join to the program in order to expand general awareness and portray the standard behavior to children in home and pupils in schools.

On the other hand, many people have strong views toward do punish children from infancy and even let to tutor to wit children in schools to prevent that fault for the second times and they believe that this is a only way to prevent from being spoil and impolite.

From my point of view, now days most of families are child-driven and punishment is phase out in compare to the past and most of the parents try to tackle this issue by policy instead of violence attitude.
