

Today going to university has become habit in people.

people go to university to finding better job or increasing their knowledge or experience new situations.

Some people choose this way to show themselves to others and become proud.

There are various reasons for going to university these days. Some people want to increase the knowledge boundaries through university but the country or college that has been choosed is important too. Another people choose this way to have academic life in future because they want to be researcher or professor. Finding a better job is another reason that universities attract the people. however, it doesn't guarantee this subject. Having university degree is the other motivation that people are interested in They only want to have several degrees from different universities and colleges to show themselves to others and be proud of them.

In my opinion, creating connections is one of the most advantages of universities. You can extend your connection network in this situation and find new friends that will help you in future.

In conclusion, each person has its purpose to go university but this decision must be done wisely.
