Basic attributes of parents have a vital role in children's personality. The way kids' manners and think depends on how parents behaved toward them. Moreover, they should have potentially suitable features to raising children precisely. From my point of view there are three main points for being useful parents.

Firstly, many a person forgets how love is affectively important factor to treat off springs. Not only is being kind with children enjoyable for them but also they will follow the pointing out of adults who has proper relations with them. In other words, instead of mentioning angrily principles, they can respect to their youth also let them know how they are favorite, lovely and important for their parents, as well as showing these in behaviors. In fact, love can felt many coldly unpleasant manners and parents should pay enough attention to their children and love them, too.

Secondly, individuals who named mother or father need to understand that their off springs will become similar to themselves. On the one hand, they are the patterns of their kids' futures. In addition, it is crucial for them trying to be properly suitable modeling for their young individuals in act. For instance, kids learn by seeing their parents' activity and they don't care about their advice.

Last but not least, altruism is a key practice that effective parents can use it for the way of raising.

Furthermore, further their personality can be possible by helping other human beings. Parents have crucial role in teaching proper ethics. On the other hand, in young ages, individuals can learn how being useful is acceptable. For example, many a mother who teaches their young adults to share their food at school with the classmates who may forget to bring something to eat, or teach lessons to whom they couldn't understand them.

In conclusion, not only do parents have a key responsibility for upbringings but also they should be proper patterns for their next generation. Hence, improved the way of raising, altruistic fathers and mothers will count the bless because of their off springs.
