

Some people think that the teenage ages are the happiest times of most people's lives. Others think that adult life brings more happiness, in spite of greater responsibilities.

Discuss both views and give your own opinion.

Adolescent period is argued as the most enjoyable by some people, whereas others are of opinion that being adults make us happier. The bone of contention here is which period of life brings more happiness to the human. This essay will discuss the perception of the meaning of happiness by both age groups and finally clear my opinion.

The teenage ages are the passage between infant and adulthood periods. In this time, every mankind has enormous free time without any responsibilities to have fun with other same ages. Not only are they completely carefree to any anxieties but also they have no definition of worry. Furthermore, in these great periods, the meaning of happiness can represent as a trips, camping or big parties.

One the other hand, when we grow up and accept social responsibilities and norms, lucidly other aspect of cheerfulness created. It is obvious that interpretation of joyfulness is different from person to person but in adulthood most of the people have the same description of blissful. They are an important person in their families and responsible to other individual's happiness. They can manage an attractive trip by themselves and spend money easily for any expenditure.

To put it in a nutshell, according to this essay, widely definitions regarding happiness can express by every mankind and despite teenage ages that have no responsibilities, from my estimation adult life brings more aspects of joyfulness in people's life.