

Many people think that fast food companies should not be allowed to advertise while others believe that all companies should have the right to advertise. What is your opinion?

Some people believe that the advertisement for fast food companies ought to be prohibited. However, others think that every industry has equal opportunity to advertise their commodities. In my opinion, I do not advocate the restriction of advertisement in the fast food industry.

In these days' fast-paced lifestyle, fast food stores have significant contributions in our society to having people ~~adapting people with to~~ it. Especially when employees have a short break time before return to their works. Nowadays, the advertisement is an essential tool in boosting the selling and Heavy promotion is their key to it.

On the other hand, some other people believe that fast food overconsumption not only makes people spend more money but also leads to serious health problems such as obesity, diabetes, and heart attack.

Indeed, as the population is uprising which means there are more people to eat out. I think fast food can be part of a balanced diet and that it should be the responsibility of individuals to make decisions about what they consume, hence, the government should take responsibility of teaching people healthy habits but ultimately they must make their own choices.

In conclusion, first of all, banning them would be against freedom of speech. Secondly, fast food commercials ~~have taken a part of~~ contributions are present in our society, so they should be treated fairly in terms of advertising. Furthermore, the amount of newly opening food places is uprising so the advertisement strategy is the hope of gaining back customers to the fast food industry.
