

Some people claim that not enough of the waste from homes is recycled. They say that the only way to increase recycling is for governments to make it a legal requirement.

To what extent do you think laws are needed to make people recycle more of their waste?

Without doubt, recycling materials is one of the widespread concerns of today. There are many ways to encourage people to recycle wastes while forcing them by making law is another way. I think that laws are necessary to reach high rate of recycling and I will elaborate that in this essay.

First of all, although citizens benefit from waste~~s~~ recycling, mostly it is not their concern either for their lack of time or some difficulties in dividing recyclable materials. Therefore, making the law as well as the use of force will be highly beneficial way soaring the amount of recycled garbage. Besides, any new strange phenomenon is faced with protest, hence disobedient citizens. Thus, making the law could force them to obey the rules. To exemplify, in my country drivers have accepted fasten their seatbelts since they had been forced by law as well as excessive fine. These rules can be applied for recycling process as well.

Secondly, humans are not consider the consequences of not recycling materials. Consequently, not only does not recycling materials cause different types of pollutions, but also non-renewable energy will be depleted in near future. ~~Whereas,, whereas~~ authorities have to prepare the infrastructures and facilities for those who are volunteers to recycle their wastes such as establishing more recycle centers to reach effortlessly.

At last, the main conclusion to be drawn from this discussion is that recycling, though hard, can be manageable by the governments, who have the authority to make the law and charge the citizens with heavy fine.
