agree or disagree? it is important to know about events happening around the world, even if it is unlikely that they will affect your daily life.

Although most people think what happens around the world has nothing to do with them, I believe differently for many reasons I will explore in the following essay.

First of all, more information, more power. There is no need to say that how crucial it is to know more about what happens around you or around the world. This kind of knowledge definitely helps people to be more successful. My uncle is a compelling example of this claim. He has a big import-export company. He is always interested in the events around the world, even if it is an interior incident in a far country. When I asked him why it is important for you to know all the things, he talked about one of his experience. He said that many years ago, the relationship between the two neighbour countries got complicated and they did not have any trade with each other. Since one of those country does not have any agriculture industry, and all their needs were imported by the neighbouring country which on the specific time, they had conflicts with them. Thus, the government had the problem of importing agricultural needs. Meanwhile, my uncle got aware of this problem and could provide some requirements for that country, such as fruits. In this way, not only he helped other people, but he also made a huge profit.

Additionally, it is a moral necessity for each person to know what is going on, in other countries, because we might help them in some circumstances. The example of poor people in Africa is a great one. Most people there do not have minimum standards of living which make them immense problems. One of this issues is that most people are afflicted with many diseases just because of lack of knowledge about how to protect themselves. And people in other developed counties, try to help them by making many volunteer groups. Although those groups might not have a huge fund to do the essential changes in those community, Just by teaching the poor people, the number of afflicted people diseases decreased over time. My friend, Sarah, was a volunteer of these groups. She told me that they went to poor African cities, to teach people about basic knowledge of HIV. And just by learning some fundamental issues about it, the number of afflicted person decreased after many years. Accordingly, it is crucial to know about other counties, because a person like Sarah can be influential too.

In conclusion, thanks to rapidly developing methods of transportation and communication, the world is now becoming a small village. So it is pivotal for everyone to know about events in this little village. Because each person might do an action which is useful for himself or for other peoples.
