

Some people think that parents should teach children how to be good members of society. Others, however, believe that school is the place to learn this. Discuss both those views and give your own opinion.

Raising children is always a huge issue for every parent and society. This has a key role in progressing society. All parents' concern is almost to have a healthy, courteous and skillful child. There is controversial argument between ~~peoples~~ who believe that as to whether it is the ~~direct~~-parents' direct responsibility ~~or~~ and the schools' duty to instruct youngsters and teenagers. From my point of view, both parents and school authorities are responsible for that and this is a mutual practice.

To begin with, there is no doubt that family is a fundamental part of a community and it has a profound impact on progressing and developing a country. Obviously, parents' behavior influences s children's character and mutually they see their parents as a first member of society and also as a role model. They exactly copy their parents' act and learned ed how to behave at the first time. Parents who both are employed have no proper time to spend ~~for~~-with their children. So the situation ~~are~~-is problematic due to the fact that they are supposed to teach their kids basic etiquettes and manners in every aspect of life and these are necessities for having an appropriate lifestyle ~~through~~-as they are getting older. Eliminating the important parents' role brings s about rearing perplexed adults in future society.

Although the role of immediate family for offspring is greatly important, Schools' role ~~model~~-is identified as a key factor in raising polite, disciplined and practical nations. Moreover, during school time, children are ~~hold~~-held from being spoiled ed and occasionally feeling discriminated against. This is like an opportunity for them to be the same as others and try ~~to~~-their best in a competitive condition as others without any nagging. When schools or in particular teachers teach students lessons or some moral rituals s most ~~of~~-as them have to follow them step by step like written laws. Sometimes, schools' authorities can inculcate their students with proper manners instead of what they are thought wrongly from their parents. It shows that not only, the school plays an educational role for children, but also has a bold role in instructing them morality.

In conclusion, the debate will always remain between both ideas for assigning this responsibility. In my opinion, parents and schools are two inseparable parts of educating youth. We do not allow taking all responsibilities on schools' shoulders. It is not fair and logical. Educating, training and fostering the offspring are an actuality which is not acquired without public cooperating cooperation of all parts of society.

