

Countries are becoming more and more similar because people are able to buy the same products anywhere in the world.

Do you think this is positive or negative development.

In every countries we have some products which are local for example Germany is famous for it's sausages or Iran is famous for it's carpets or zafran . But nowadays we need not go to Germany for sausages or Germans needn't go to Iran to buy carpet or zafran . We can find all of that in some stores which are so close to us . But I think it can have some negative and positive effects s on developing the world and ~~I want to~~ ~~talk about~~ this essay will discuss both of them.

The First one is economic, . In my opinion, If governments decide to bring all of the souvenirs from all around the world to every local markets from all neighbor then this act can destroy one of the main reasons that tourists visit other countries.

The second one is culture , . In my point of view, If we don't have any tourists then countries couldn't share their culture with other ones and then no person wouldn't find out about other cultures and believes.

And in my opinion, having our own products can bring dollars in our country and it can help poor countries like us to develop our economy .

In conclusion , If governments send every local products to other countries, then tourists don't have an important reason to travel because they have every things in their neighborhood ,And then some countries which supply their expenses with tourism won't have any , and then they will broke down.
