

Nowadays in many countries woman have full time jobs. Therefore, it is logical to share household task evenly between man and woman. To what extent do you agree or disagree with the statement.

Due to modernism, every aspect of life has been changed. With no doubt, men`s and women`s roles have differed greatly from many years ago that most of the women were housewife unlike now that many of them are employees. I definitely agree that a full time job gets a lot of energy from women. Therefore, the house chores must be shared between wife and husband.

On the one hand, many a person believes that household tasks are the main responsibilities of women. Furthermore, men are breadwinner and responsible for financial problems. Moreover, Not only does a full time job make women weak in terms of physical condition, but also it prevents them spending enough time to look after their children or even do chores such as cleaning the house as well as cooking.

On the other hand, today, the number of women who have a full time job is increasing. Either it is for their tendency to be a highly profitable person in society, like Angela Merkel who is Chancellor of Germany, or forced due to arduous economic conditions. As a result, women can spend less time on doing housework, hence the necessity of men`s help. In other words, as ladies cooperate with their husbands to make a better financial condition, men have to come to their assistance at home.

To conclude, in this modern era, both wife and husband have to work shoulder to shoulder and make their mutual life well. Although each party have to pay attention to their traditional responsibility which is feeding family for men and doing household tasks for women.
