

Home schooling belongs to the past and is unacceptable in modern society. To what extent do you agree or disagree with this statement?

Use your own knowledge and experience and support your arguments with examples and relevant evidence.

Gone are the times that people who wanted to have educated children could train their own children themselves. However, depending on what way and how parents use, home schooling might have-worked out in these modern days. Therefore, I believe this kind of educating could be an inevitably useful experience in human's life.

On the one hand, barely do we see families teaching their offspring when they are teenagers, but in rural areas or poor families it may occasionally happen. Since they have not had enough money or a lack of schools in their places, they were forced to teach their youths. Thus, from my prospectperspective, it falls to-on the government to provide suitable conditions for these kinds of population to benefit from as much-faira-fairly an educational system as do the others. On the contrary, some normal families insist on training their children at home, while they do not have a profound knowledge of all types of sciences. By way of an example, not all of the individuals know much enough about history or biology even on a school textbook level, hence their failure in promoting a highly academic person, and herein lies the causes to most of the social problems in a country.

On the other hand, utilized correctly, home schooling could be a positive way to aid children in fast learning and behaving toward strange kids before going to a public place. For instance, painting books, story books and whatnot could help mums and dads to preparing-prepare their infants-offspring/charges to understand dictations as well as remembering the shape of the letters faster and easier.

By way of Conclusion, although much ink has been spelled-spilt over this issue, Arguably, not only is home schooling not for the past, but also in-thisthese days, is an extremely profitable instruments in developed countrycountries.
