

The only way to reduce the amount of traffic in cities today is by reducing the need for people to travel from home for work, education or shopping.

To what extent do you agree or disagree?

Today, traffic is a main problem which most of the countries are dealing with. This essay will discuss some of the reasons for this traffic and what can be done to reduce it.

First of all, the number of cars and vehicles in streets and roads has ~~been~~ increased dramatically compared to the past and this issue is more tangible in the rush hours we experience every morning and evening. Also, the capacity of roads and streets has not been developed as much as the number of the cars. /in proportion to

~~After that~~besides, nowadays technology plays an important role ~~to in solve~~ solving the traffic problem. For instance, some people do their work from home or ~~learning~~ their lessons via the internet. Moreover, these days a large number of purchases are made by virtual shopping stores which help reduce traffic congestion in big cities. However, modern public transportation ~~in society~~ such as trams or subways ~~helps~~ people get better commute. Also, increasing the number of subway lines and stations ~~renders~~ helps people use ~~this~~ these facilities more which in turn ~~reduces~~ reduces traffic volumes s in cities.

On the other hand, people need to have face-to-face connection and nothing else can replace it. On-line shopping and other ~~same~~ similar methods cause people to have less social contact with each other which is not suitable for humans s that ~~prefers~~ prefer to live together. Having relationship with each other is an important issue that should not be overlooked.

So overall, I believe that, ~~reducing~~ the amount of traffic by the mentioned methods s in the subject is not only the acceptable solution and other ways should also be considered.
